Summary:

I strive to generate value for society, whether as a professor, researcher, or consultant. I am currently Associate Professor of Practice of Business and Finance at New York University Shanghai and Affiliate Professor at Fundação Dom Cabral. I am also Senior Scholar at the Center for Sustainable Business, NYU Stern and columnist at Folha de São Paulo, the largest newspaper in Brazil. My various research programs form the backdrop to my new textbook Economics of Global Business (2018, MIT Press). A robust teaching portfolio spanning several continents, disciplines and audiences informs my research, publications, and speaking engagements. My courses in economics and finance are tailor-made for each type of participant, whether undergraduates, MBA students, or top executives.

My research on sustainable finance, development economics and financial management has been published in Nature Sustainability, Journal of Corporate Finance, Harvard Business Review, Journal of Business Ethics, Economic Letters, International Journal of Production Economics, Economic Modelling, and European Journal of Health Economics. My writing has also appeared as book chapters, magazine and newspaper articles, including in the New York Times, Bloomberg, the World Economic Forum, Nature communities and more.

In executive education, I have developed courses with numerous companies such as Kraft Foods, Johnson & Johnson, Santander, Skanska, L'Oreal, RCI Banque, Vale, Queiroz Galvão, Itaú Bank, and Petrobras, as well as varied government agencies. I have delivered more than 15,000 hours of teaching for undergraduates and over 4,000 hours for post-graduates and executive education. My consulting jobs and funded research include valuation, M&A, working capital management, personal finance and trust funds, among others. For more information, please visit <http://rzeidan.com>.
